

I paid for the ProCharts to create this chart and several other major milestones in Elliott Wave, note below how the chart becomes corrupted as soon as I logged off.

The chart below is what the above becomes after I log-off

I even sent Stockcharts the hacking script, to no avail, and idiot had a nonsensical reponse to everything, he then thretend to cut me off & will include here at a later date, after the hoidays.

What's more each time I open this chart to edit, it takes far longer than usual then comes up with the most recent annotations missing. The first to go was Supercycle (II), followed by "fractals"..to make changes to this chart I must do it in Paint or Photoshop, the Stockcharts version will only delete and tell me I have "too many annotations" and deletes what I just spent 20 min documenting. Although this message does occur, it is always a warning of future annotations, it does not DELETE!

In essence, the page gets corrupted so that no one will be able to see this critical count found nowhere else incorporating my discoveries which refine and advance the Wave Principle

What's more as I attempt to document this the margins are being changed to go off the page.

Eduardo Mirahyes

Exceptional Bear

Dec 23, 2013